The Nightmare Alley nominee often tops best-dressed lists, and Sunday night proved why she's hall-of-fame level. The fit of Blanchett's Giorgio Armani Privé gown was impeccable, while it also included one of the evening's most beautiful details, as the plunging neckline was embellished with sizable onyx stones in a variety of cuts. The strawberry-blond star styled her hair in elegant waves, wearing a soft peachy-pink lip to counteract her bold dress. She accessorized with coordinating chunky jewels by Pomellato, including some funky oversized stone rings and a pair of drop earrings.

The daring outfit was a perfect pick to pay tribute to her role in "Nightmare Alley," which Blanchett described to The New Indian Express as having "all the joys and thrills of a noir, but it's really contemporary and so beautiful."

Even though she didn't win her category tonight, Blanchett's red carpet look took home all the awards in our book.

Speechless! The Nightmare Alley actress has taken our SAG Awards best dressed number one spot — and for good reason. She dominated the red carpet in a custom Armani gown complete with a plunging neckline. It was her jewelry game that brought her look to a whole new level though. The actress, who works with stylist Elizabeth Stewart, dazzled in five Pomellato rings. With diamonds, green tourmalines, brown diamonds and blue topaz, her bling was unmatched.

Clockwise from top: Sabbia ring in rose gold with brown diamonds, Blanchett's own Victoria ring in rose gold with jet, Nudo ring in white gold with London blue topaz and diamonds, and Ritratto ring in rose gold with lapis lazuli; all prices on request; Pomellato

We find ourselves asking this every awards season: Is there anything Cate Blanchett cannot wear? And the answer is always no. On anyone else, this Armani Privé gown with an illusion panel, architectural bustle detail along the hip, and jewellike adornments along the plunging neckline would probably look trashy. But on Lady Cate it looks spectacular. For jewels she turned to one of her go-to brands, Pomellato: We loved the one-of-a-kind La Gioia di Pomellato green tourmaline drop earrings, but we truly flipped for the four statement rings—in rose gold and white gold with white diamonds, brown diamonds, blue topaz, lapis, and jet—that she piled on both hands.
