BRIDALBRILLIANCE
Christopher Designs

The crafting of jewelry has always been an art form of function and design. Christopher Slowinski founder of Christopher Designs, combined his engineering background and classic jewelry training to change the way that traditional gemstone cutting is done.

Through exacting research of symmetry, proportion, angles and light performance within a diamond, Slowinski's patented Crisscut design provides a superior brilliance, brightness and a silhouette that appears 35 to 60 percent larger than another similar carat weight stone. "I have always been intrigued with taking something established and making it even more beautiful," says Slowinski.

NEW LAUNCH
Chopard

Last year was an exciting one for the renowned Swiss jewelry house. It launched its first iteration of the Mini-Froufrou into its Precious Lace Collection and, looking to create a more accessible and wearable collection somewhere between haute and fine jewelry, the brand managed to create a spectacularly precious assortment of everyday pieces. While the first offering was exclusively diamonds, Chopard is now expanding the collection with ruby versions. Inspired by the lightness and delicateness of antique lace, the collection features a stylized flower, designed with scalloped borders and pear-shaped ruby petals on an airy openwork rose gold setting. The motif can be found on a ring, earrings, pendant, and bangle.

WATCHTALK

by Roger Ruegger

— The 2021 list of winning watches at the prestigious Grand Prix d'Horlogerie de Genève (GPHG) was unveiled on Nov. 4, 2021, during a festive awards ceremony that also marked the 20th anniversary of the GPHG (the 2020 edition had to be held almost exclusively in a virtual format due to the pandemic).

The best in show award, the Aiguille d'Or Grand Prix, was awarded to Bulgari for its ultra-thin Octo Finissimo watches, this year represented by the newly launched Perpetual Calendar (Ref. 103200) with an automatic movement that measures just 2.75 mm in thickness. Bulgari had already won six category awards in the years before, but never the Grand Prix.

Audemars Piguet (historically the participating watch brand with the most trophies), Bernhard Lederer, Chopard, Christian Van Der Klaauw, CIGA Design, De Bethune, Furlan Marri, Grand Seiko, Louis Vuitton, MB&F, Piaget, Tudor, Van Cleef & Arpels and Zenith were also given awards by the Jury and the GPHG Academy for the quality of their creations in various categories. The Special Jury Prize, which "rewards a personality or an influential institution on the watchmaking scene," was given to the Dubai Watch Week, founded in 2015 by Ahmed Seddigi & Sons.

With the Blue Planet (Ref. P001-BLOG-3SET) from 2012-founded Shenzhen-based CIGA Design, the watch company made history as the award's first winning watch from China (the Challenge category is for watches with a retail price equal to or under CHF 3,500). Grand Seiko, on the other hand, won its second award at the GPHG, this time in the Men's Watch category with the SLGH005 "White Birch" (the SBGJ005 had won the "Petite Aiguille" in 2014).

After having had an impressive six watches shortlisted in 2019, Zenith's return to the GPHG this year was awarded in — what undoubtedly represents the most relevant category for the inventor of the El Primero movement — the Chronograph category with the Chronomaster Sport. Surprisingly, Breitling, having won two awards in 2020, didn't receive an award for one of its four shortlisted watches; the same with IWC's four shortlists.

In total, 83 watches and one clock (Miki Eleta's Svemir) made the shortlist this year; 18 were given an award.

Max Büsser picked up two awards at the GPHG 2021.

— WatchTime New York 2021 wrapped up in October 2021 following three days of new wrist-watch presentations, talks, and warm reunions as the global watch community gathered for the first live, in-person WatchTime New York event since 2019. The triumphant comeback also marked a notable expansion for the major event, widely regarded as America's most important public watch event dedicated to collectors, which this year offered a packed three-day lineup, held at Gotham Hall from Friday, October 22, to Sunday, October 24, 2021. The event, produced by WatchTime and presented in partnership with sponsors Tourneau/Bucherer and BMW, also marked one of the first large-scale luxury events in New York City to successfully reconvene post-quarantine.

The sixth edition of WatchTime New York kicked off Friday, October 22, with a high-energy VIP cocktail event. Eager guests gathered in the Seiko-sponsored lobby before surging into the show floor under Gotham Hall's famed rotunda. Well-heeled private collectors and watch enthusiasts got the first chance to mingle with brand executives and influencers in attendance while marveling at the latest offerings from the 28 registered brand exhibitors, including Chopard, Breguet, Blancpain, Seiko, Norqain, Grand Seiko, MB&F, and others, while enjoying top-shelf libations and passed hors d'oeuvre. Tourneau/Bucherer provided the event's signature "Bucherer Blue" cocktail.

This year's longer three-day event format doubled the popular slate of WatchTime New York panels on Saturday and Sunday, October 23 and 24, featuring leading experts and figures from the watch world. This year's panels, moderated by WatchTime Publisher Sara Orlando, WatchTime Editor-in-Chief Roger Ruegger, and renowned collector and consultant Jeff Kingston, explored hot topics in the watch world today, from how the watch landscape has changed since 2019 in the wake of global disruption, to the state of women's watch offerings in today's marketplace, to the current landscape of brand collaborations. The final panel of the weekend covered the ongoing surge in demand and shortage of stainless-steel sport-luxury watches, with featured celebrity panelist and watch lover Aldis

Hodge, star of One Night in Miami and City on a Hill.

WatchTime New York also served as a major stage for new product launches. On Saturday, October 23, recording artist and producer Swizz Beatz arrived to personally launch his new collaboration with De Bethune: the new Dream Watch 5. The new A. Lange & Söhne Zeitwerk Honeygold "Lumen" was announced live from the show floor on Sunday, October 24, coinciding with the brand's anniversary.

Watch lovers who could not attend the show this year had the opportunity to tune in to a digital TimeOut session with WatchTime Editor-in-Chief Roger Ruegger and Senior Editor Mark Bernardo, who recapped some of the event highlights and notable timepieces exhibited on site, which included but were not limited to the new Blancpain Air Command Titanium, the Bremont Longitude, the MB&F Legacy Machine Perpetual EVO in titanium, the Arnold & Son Luna Magna Platinum, and the MeisterSinger Unomat, as well as the U.S.-Exclusive Seiko Prospex SLA053 and SLA059 "Seigaiha" Editions, and the Glashütte Original PanomaticLunar Red Gold Green Dial. First-time exhibitors this year included Chopard, Massena LAB and Norqain, among others.

"The success of our show this year underlines the fact that the luxury and watch industries are booming right now," said WatchTime Publisher Sara Orlando, "and collectors are eager for the kind of face-to-face, hands-on interactions that we have always facilitated at WatchTime New York." WatchTime Editor-in-Chief Roger Ruegger added, "We were so proud to have brought WatchTime New York back live and in-person, not just safely, but on a bigger scale than ever before: with an extended schedule, more engaging panels, and welcoming new brands this year. We are excited to build on this momentum in 2022."

Color and Important Stones Rule High Jewelry in Paris

• Pieces shown in Paris were all about larger stones or bold colors – sometimes both.

BY LILY FORTHEIMER

PARIS – Fashion shows may still have been sensitive to their roots during Paris Couture Week, but for jewelry houses, the message was “go big or go home,” as they brought out jewels as exotic as those in the French capital.

While this first rendezvous of the year is traditionally a more quiet one, houses big and small came out with gusto, going bold in color, size and design, even with diamonds, no longer limited to icy transparency.

Even Chanel – which opted out of the week after unveiling the “Silent Océan” necklace, the highlight of its upcoming “1932” anniversary collection marking 90 years since its very first high-jewelry

Bouquet,” said the Italian brand’s jewelry creation and gem buying director Lada Silverati of the three new diamond necklaces in the form of a master clock, as a way to share her passion for time. “The fact that there is a lot of work behind [each] beautiful piece of art.”

Indeed, beyond the 20 something carats of emeralds of the La Marguette necklace or the graphic concept of a ring featuring a lot of emeralds, the collection, it was the usual work on the most gold and ruby jewelry necklace that struck the most.

“It’s a very old and sophisticated technique that calls for handcraft and also the help of a machine,” Silverati explained of the bracelet, which required a fair share of the house’s 100,000 carats of diamonds to bring to life the intricate sculpture that glows against the center of the neck.

Chanel turned its three “diamond headpieces” into a slice of crystalline art to highlight its “diamond” or “diamond” collection.

“There is all its state and movement in something that really is a masterpiece, even to the case of Joseph Chopard, because the house loves movement, a constant evolution,” said the jewelry’s chief executive officer Jean Marc Maynard, referring to a 1900 design from diamonds and shown next to its modern-day descendant.

To continue the theme was the 1,000 diamond ring that has a wave moving on the band, a series of diamonds forming a pattern and drops of water. The mix of brilliant and various cuts, as well as the position of setting, indicates a way to “make light create differently,” according to Silverati.

Also on display was a remarkable ring featuring a 6-carat emerald on a diamond setting, a piece that could be worn with or without the display of diamonds, various options to wear a cut of water around fingers, ears or the neck, and a series of rings with a face hidden under a scattering of precious water drops.

While in the de la Pile house is under renovation, Cartier moved into the 1920s house to showcase the first chapter of its “Séjour” high-jewelry collection, with its mixing and matching mind-blowing designs that looked like a cocktail – at the very least – glass.

Pieces on show included new variations on the famed “Tutti Frutti” design with their production of juicy gems, the Black Panther cut that showed back once or rows of glowing diamonds, depending on which way the look design was placed, and a diamond and sapphire bracelet watch, its functional side cunningly hidden in plain sight under a diamond. A powerful necklace featured a snake’s head with coral emeralds, while another showed a playful fierce snow tiger growing to a scorpion’s essence.

In a series of some 100 can be described as both a vase and a portrait, at De Beers, it’s certainly more in the two shapes. On the one hand, the diamonds are taken care of from its name to offer structures of interconnected diamonds, including an $1.37-carat internally flawless D diamond centerpiece for a necklace.

On the other, series of diamond, rose gold and black rhodium coated white gold played with fancy-cut diamonds

The necklace of light by De Beers features a large emerald and diamonds, with a wave design.

In orange, brown and yellow to figure sunlight. Among the standouts were the light days earrings, bringing maximum wear effect with minimal weight, and the matching necklace, with its decorative central motif that could be used as a bag chain.

As is customary, Boucheron turned to its archive for the January offering titled “New Maharajah” that celebrated the 100th anniversary of the house’s most legendary client – Maharajah Singh, Maharaja of Patiala in a 14-piece interpretation.

Original jewelry designs were turned on their heads in terms of scale and color, while keeping in the spirit of the original ancestral Indian techniques, in particular carved apertures. Among the highlights were the many opulent pieces by Chopard’s transformable designs, as well as the emphasis that added a touch of highly contemporary pieces.

While 80 pieces, “Golden Ours” offered a profusion worthy of the house’s own star steller’s resources, as artistic director Valérie de Caraculski looked to the refinement of references for her designs. Asymmetry ruled, with unusual placements that saw stones of color as if they had been scattered in, in better transfer the idea of a cutting table scene with precious stones.

They ranged from the simplicity of a pair of round studs as a choker necklace and circle earrings to the nine new necklaces mixing deeply complex floral and geometric rows of diamonds into an actively assembled jumble of platinum, rose and yellow gold strands.

And for the first time in a high jewelry offering, cufflinks were designed for men – although clients of any gender could be tempted.

Also new to its costume heritage were details such as the layer of notching lacquer applied to the chain holding a sapphire or an emerald in place, to avoid detaching from the stone’s hold fast.

For Roman Groussin, the idea of having metal imposing itself casually over gemstones was a discarded idea, but he chose to place minute matching gemstones on the surface of metal, for the first time in a high jewelry offering, cufflinks were designed for men – although clients of any gender could be tempted.

Pieces included a sapphire necklace ring featuring a sapphire square cut Colombian emerald set on a row of rubies a necklace that looked like a snake and collar with a tier of 44 Zambian emeralds layered over it, and a single carved-on-of amber bead necklace with a diamond.

But what got tongues wagging furiously in the first place was the new showing was a diamond of 1.6 carats, featuring two blue sapphires totaling more than 120 carats – if the 120 diamonds of pink ones paired with large emerald bangles hadn’t been enough.

“What clients are expecting is to be surprised and to fall in love with a design,” the veteran jewelry said.

While all eyes were on Chopard’s uncut Insof emerald and its 6,225 carats, which took pride of place in a room of its Paris boutique turned into a black box to better bring out the electric green of the record-breaking stone, the “Exceptional Gemstones” offered up by the house held their own.

Inspired by nature, copresident and artistic director Caroline Scheufele brought together rare stones found around the world – responsibly, of course.

The pieces included the “Rose of Caroline” ring and its 70-carat faceted, radiant-cut, fancy intense pink diamond, flanked by two heart-shaped rubies given further sparkle by the micro-pavé band in white and rose gold; a pair of pears – one an internally flawless D, the other a fancy intense blue – coming together on a “toi et moi” ring, and a showstopper necklace of 200-plus carats of octagonal emeralds and diamonds.

Let 'Emily in Paris' Be Your Valentine's Guide

The featured jewels in Season 2, Episode 5 are all about love

by Marion Fasel

February 7, 2022—I have seen the memes and heard the haters on Netflix's Emily in Paris. You know what they were wrong! Emily, portrayed delightfully by Lily Collins, along with her French friends and lovers are a joy.

I am not alone in this sunny take on the series. Style icons, Mickey Boardman and Lynn Yaeger, shared their enthusiasm for Emily on their must-see Mickey & Lynn Show, broadcast on Instagram Stories every Friday at 6pm ET. Fitness guru Tracy Anderson admitted to "power watching" all of Emily in Paris because she loved it so much. On Saturday Night Live, football legend Peyton Manning hilariously confessed his affection for Emily on Weekend Update. It went viral.

Is Special

Emily (Lily Collins) wearing the Fred diamond and rubellite Pretty Woman Audacious Necklace in Season 2, Episode 3 of 'Emily in Paris'.

Others opening up about their fandom for Emily inspired me to do the same. With Valentine's Day on the horizon, it seemed like the perfect moment to look back at the heart jewels in Season 2, Episode 5, "An Englishman in Paris." The motif signaled all the love connections sparking among several characters. Any of them would be a great Valentine's, Galentine's or love yourself-self-purchase.

For the central scene in the episode on a boat ride down the Seine, Emily wears a heart-print dress by Anzaki and a Fred diamond and rubellite Pretty Woman Audacious Necklace. The jewel is a tribute to the company's ruby and diamond heart necklace famously worn by Julia Roberts in Pretty Woman.

Chopard has long been a partner of the Cannes Film Festival where its jewelry has been seen on A-list celebrities and fashion icons around the world. The house is known for its classic diamond jewelry, like its circular diamond earrings, but in recent years, Chopard has leaned into producing more everyday jewelry, like Happy Hearts and Happy Diamonds, featuring diamonds floating between glass.

Chopard's Karl-Friedrich Scheufele on Winemaking, Truffle Hunting and Restoring Vintage Cars

Scheufele and his sister Caroline have been running the 162-year-old Swiss jewelry and watch company since 2001.

By PAIGE REDDINGER

Nicolas Blandin

You could say Karl-Friedrich Scheufele was born to do what he does. His family purchased Chopard, the venerable 162-year-old Swiss watch manufacture, in 1963, and Scheufele, together with his sister, Caroline, took over from their father, Karl Scheufele III, in 2001. But the siblings had already been hard at work for two decades transforming the company into the high-wattage watch-and-jewelry empire it is today.

In 1980, when Scheufele was just 22, he designed the company's first steel sports watch, the St. Moritz, so he'd have something to wear on the slopes of the Swiss Alps. In 2019, Scheufele was inspired to revisit the concept and created a reboot of sorts, the Alpine Eagle. It has done so well that it is "presently facing a shortage of product on the market." When he's not busy spearheading the development of the company's next-generation timepieces or planning A-list red-carpet jewelry affairs in Cannes, you can find him unwinding at his traditional Swiss chalet in the snow-covered mountains of Gstaad—Switzerland's ultra-elite winter playground.

What watch are you wearing?

I wear the Alpine Eagle, but I've also been wearing an L.U.C. 1860. It's the very first L.U.C. that we introduced 25 years ago. It also contains the first automatic movement that we reintroduced. You can open and close the caseback. Today it's really a collector's piece. I've been feeling nostalgic because of our anniversary, the 25 years of our manufacture, I took it back out and I'm happily wearing it.

How many watches do you have in your personal collection?

I would say around 30 or 35, at least. But I also keep on wearing prototypes that are going to be launched or even watches for repairs that were complicated for a customer, whom I personally know.

What is something you've done recently for the first time?

Recently I finally managed to go black-truffle hunting in the Périgord region, where we also grow wine.

What do you do that is still analog?

I love to read books, magazines, auction catalogs and newspapers.

La Montagne by Maurice Herzog.
Nicolas Giarin

How do you find calm?

In Gstaad, I like to go skinning, where you walk up the mountain with skins under your skis. When you're at the top, you take the skins off and ski down. You make a pretty steep effort to get there, and then you have the pleasure of one run down the slope.

Scheufele and his skinning skis.
Nicolas Giarin

What is the most recent thing you have added to your collection?

I added a piece of art that shows the imprint of a hand. I found that very meaningful because of our manufacture. These imprints, which are in metal, will be found in the entrance of our manufacture. It's by a New York-based French artist named Prune Nourry.

What do you regret not buying?

A pair of floor lamps by a Belgian designer named Emiel Veranneman. He designed them in the '60s, and I really like the style and finish.

What does success look like to you?

I think success is when you are able to contribute to a better life in general for people you love and that surround you. Success is something I am happy to share with others, because usually the type of success we could talk about in my case is really thanks to a group of people who believed in what they were doing with us and with me. Therefore, I think success is something to share.

Where do you get your clothes?

I used to have a tailor in Italy, but he passed away. He worked until age 85. But now I found someone in Zurich, as of a few years ago, but he's still learning my ideas. [Laughs] I love to go to all of the shops that are around Jermyn Street in London, the tailors where you would buy everything or the shops with specialty combs and brushes. These specialized stores, unfortunately, are disappearing—stores for umbrellas, hats or caps. So I try to support them. I think London is probably the place where most of them are still left.

Drive or be driven?

I prefer to drive, with some exceptions, like with my friend, the race-pilot legend Mr. Jacky Ickx. But actually, once in a while my wife drives me to the office, so I can look at my emails. We trade places so we can extend our work a little bit.

How would you describe your look?

It's difficult to judge yourself, but probably classical and more on the elegant side. I'm not the type of person who would wear jogging shoes with a suit. But once in a while, when I feel like it, I don't wear a tie. And once in a while, I don't shave for two days.

Last piece of advice you gave?

We have a slogan we put on our wine bottles, and the translation is, "What you do with time, time will respect."

Scheufele's Alpine Eagle and a bottle of Chateau Monestier La Tour.
Nicolas Stenelin

Which car are you most attached to?

My first classic car that I bought many years back. It's a dark-red Porsche 356 Speedster. It's the first car I really invested a lot of money in to restore. It was not in great condition, but I still enjoy the restoration process today. It's a wonderful little car to drive.

Do you own and restore other vintage cars as well?

Oh, you are opening a whole book here! I prefer not to say how many—not even my wife knows! [Laughs] But the oldest car in my collection is a Bentley from 1929. In Gstaad, I keep a Land Rover from 1971 that has been restored to original specifications.

Scheufele's 1971 Land Rover.
Nicolas Stenelin

Wine of choice?

We have a vineyard, a winery and a wine bar, so we have probably the most impressive choice in Geneva, but the ones I prefer nowadays are organically produced. We went through the transformation at our vineyard to organic or even biodynamic growth. It was quite hard and time-consuming, so I appreciate what all of these wine growers have been going through. But one wine, over the years, that I always liked very much is Haut-Brion from Bordeaux.

What causes are important to you?

Protecting nature and being mindful about global warming and so on is key nowadays. In our field of activity, the sourcing of ethical gold is something we introduced. And we partner with the Eagle Wings Foundation on the reintroduction of eagles in the alpine region.

From Boucheron to Louis Vuitton, the Most Jaw-Dropping Jewels From Paris High-Jewelry Week

Owing to the pandemic, the presentations were understated. The jewels, however, were anything but.

Chopard

Chopard Insofu Emerald
Chopard

The star of Chopard's high jewelry presentation wasn't a jewel, but an emerald, and not just any emerald, but the Chopard Insofu Emerald, a 6,225-carat rough gem mined in Zambia and recently acquired by co-president and artistic director Caroline Scheufele. The fully traceable stone is expected to yield a number of high-quality cut gems, to be used in future Chopard collections ("the promise of marvels to come," as the brand stated in an Instagram post).

Chopard Rose of Caroline and Toi et Moi Blue- and White-Diamond Ring
Chopard

The other notable pieces in the Geneva jeweler's small but mighty showing included a Fairmined-certified ethical gold ring set with a 10.88-ct. radiant-cut fancy intense pink diamond and a Toi & Moi two-stone ring that features an exceptional 4.10-ct. fancy intense blue diamond and a top-quality white diamond. Megan Fox, eat your heart out!

Brand Heritage Remains the Top Source of Inspiration for the World's Best Jewelry Houses

New haute joaillerie collections from houses like Boucheron, Louis Vuitton, and Dior delivered splendor steeped in unrivaled heritage.

Named after the Bemba word for 'elephant', the Insofu rough emerald - an astonishing discovery totaling at 6,225 carats - was presented by Chopard in Paris. This rare stone that was found in the Kagem mine in Zambia is exceptional not only for its weight, but also for its quality. While not yet realized into many pieces of jewelry - like no doubt it will be - this stone shimmers with the possibilities, and Caroline Scheufele, co-President and Artistic Director of Chopard, plans to be present each step of the way as this magnificent find is cut and honed into future designs. Chopard also presented several finished pieces in Paris, including a 10.88 carat 'Rose of Caroline' diamond set as a ring with rubies flanking it on either side.

Color and Important Stones Rule High Jewelry in Paris

Pieces shown in Paris were all about larger stones or bold colors — sometimes both.

By LILY TEMPLETON FEBRUARY 1, 2022, 2:56PM

While all eyes were on Chopard's uncut Insofu emerald and its 6,225 carats, which took pride of place in a room of its Paris boutique turned into a black box to better bring out the electric green of the record-breaking stone, the "Exceptional Gemstones" offered up by the house held their own.

Inspired by nature, copresident and artistic director Caroline Scheufele brought together rare stones found around the world — responsibly, of course.

The pieces included the "Rose of Caroline" ring and its 70-carat faceted, radiant-cut, fancy intense pink diamond, flanked by two heart-shaped rubies given further sparkle by the micro-pavé band in white and rose gold; a pair of pears — one an internally flawless D, the other a fancy intense blue — coming together on a "toi et moi" ring, and a showstopper necklace of 200-plus carats of octagonal emeralds and diamonds.

Four Watches That Prove That Less Is More

Written by Martin Green
February 12, 2022

It is often thought that simple, clean designs are the easiest to create. Unfortunately, the opposite is true. The cleaner the design of the watch is, the more weight individual details have on the overall look. The trick is to incorporate just the right elements, and not a single one more, and create a synergy between them. This is also a much-needed aspect, as otherwise, your clean design would be boring. The following four watches are good examples that got it just right.

Chopard L.U.C XP

Chopard gave the traditional dress watch a more contemporary look with the L.U.C XP. The brushed blue dial is not as formal as silver or black, while the red gold hands, numerals, and hour markers offer an enticing contrast. A stainless steel case might come as a surprise, adding a casual touch to which your suit won't object. The strap made from virgin wool further plays into this, while Chopard underscores its reputation as an Haute Horlogerie brand by having a lining of alligator leather. This creates the perfect understatement, purely for the enjoyment of the owner.

Which one of these is your favorite? Let us know in the comment box below.

Revisited: Thin Watches At Every Budget

FEBRUARY 23, 2022

WORDS BY WORN & WOUND

Way back in the before time, 2019, Ed Jelley brought us 8 thin watches under \$1,500, and while we still stand by those selections (seriously, there's some great ones in there), we thought it high time to expand on the theme. This time, we'll keep a selection of broadly accessible options, as well as loosen the purse strings and let our hair down for a bit of wishful thinking. At the heart of it, thin watches. That means 10mm(ish) in total thickness, just as Ed put forth a lifetime ago. Oh, and we'll bring a few more voices into the mix for good measure. Be sure to make your voice heard in the comments below and let us know what we've missed.

Chopard Alpine Eagle

The Chopard Alpine Eagle is a watch that might not get the credit it deserves. It's a high-end, integrated steel sport watch with provenance, and it's available to purchase at an AD. It's also 9.7mm thick. It can be had in 36mm or 41mm, each housing Chopard's own 01.01-C mechanical movement. Pair this with a stunning dial that resembles the eye of an eagle, and well, you've got a pretty compelling watch for around $10k. Not cheap by any stretch, but compared to some of the other thin, high end steel sport watches out there, this is a downright bargain.

Rihanna Says Her Pregnancy Has Been an "Exciting Journey"

And yes, she says new music's coming.

BY QUINCY LEGARDY / FEB 13 2022, 1:56 PM EST

Here's Proof That Rihanna Can Do Literally Anything
by Harper's BAZAAR US

The superstar opened up about pregnant life at her Fenty Beauty Universe event in Los Angeles Friday night. For the appearance, the mother-to-be wore a backless sequin top from The Attico's Spring 2022 collection with purple ombre pants and jewelry from Chopard and Messika.

In a red carpet interview with Entertainment Tonight, the multi-hyphenate explained the thought process behind her latest looks, saying "[pregnancy's] a long nine to 10 months. You have to enjoy it."

"Fashion is one of my favorite things, so, you know, we're defying what it even means to be pregnant and maternal," she continued. "It can get uncomfortable at times and so you can dress the part and pretend."

© GETTY IMAGES

"It's all an exciting journey so far, I'm just taking it as it comes every week. There's always something new and I'm just taking it and I'm enjoying it," she added, adding that her maternity beauty routine includes "staying moisturized, from head to toe."

The "Work" singer also reassured that, while she's focusing on "one thing at a time," new music is still on the way (at some point in the future). "Yes, you're still going to get music from me," she shared, joking "My fans would kill me if they waited this long for a lullaby."

The Fenty mogul took time to pose with A$AP Rocky last night, who coordinated with his girlfriend in a purple Louis Vuitton letterman jacket, distressed jeans, green sneakers. The rapper told ET that he's loving "everything about" the journey so far.

"I'm just excited for what I don't know yet. Everything is new to me," he said. "So, I'm excited."

Rihanna's Latest Maternity Look Shut Down the Red Carpet

BY LIAM HESS

Ever since Rihanna announced her first pregnancy with ASAP Rocky last Monday in an epic look that featured a hot pink knee-length Chanel puffer jacket and belly chains, she's made it clear that her vision of maternity style is here to shake things up. She's worn everything from a black lace-up Jean Paul Gaultier top and low rise pants to accentuate her baby bump, to a showstopping vintage denim and leopard print patchworked coat paired with jeans and a Fendi crop top—all while dripping in plenty of dazzling Jacquie Aiche gold body chains, naturally.

WATCH

Making her red carpet debut as a mom-to-be last night, however, Rihanna may have pulled off her most dazzling maternity look yet. Opting for a more pared-back look—pared-back for Rihanna, anyway—the musician and mogul attended a launch event for her Fenty Beauty and Fenty Skin lines in Los Angeles wearing a thrillingly skin-baring outfit by the cult Italian brand The Attico. The lime green top and silver-purple ombré trousers were crafted from countless squared sequins strung together to create a shredded effect, while the look was topped off with a pair of amethyst and diamond Chopard earrings, Messika diamond rings, and a pair of trusty Manolo Blahnik python sandals.

Rihanna Wraps Up in a Red-Hot Leather Coat Dress for Valentine's Date with A$AP Rocky Love is in the air.

BY CHELSEY SANCHEZ / FEB 14, 2022, 10:50 AM EST

Valentine's Day has arrived and with it, a load of red-hot fashion inspiration from Rihanna.

The Fenty mogul was spotted over the weekend dressed for the holiday. Longtime stylist Jahleel Weaver put the pregnant icon in a custom Alaïa leather coat dress in a sizzling red shade—a departure from her recent maternity looks, which have mostly used her baby bump as an accessory, whether under a laced-up cardigan from Jean Paul Gaultier or below a teeny-tiny crop top. Weaver paired the coat dress with custom strappy heels in red from Amina Muaddi. Accessories were just as extravagant, with Rihanna wearing ruby-and-diamond Chopard hoop earrings, Maria Tash diamonds, and gold Jacquie Aiche body chains.

Baby daddy A$AP Rocky wore a flashy look courtesy of Celine Homme by Hedi Slimane. He stepped out in a gray pinstriped suit adorned with sequins, a white button-up, and a black tie. He also color-coordinated with the "Love on the Brain" singer with a pair of red-and-silver sneakers.

Rihanna recently opened up about using fashion to make a statement throughout her pregnancy. "[Pregnancy's] a long nine to 10 months. You have to enjoy it," she told Entertainment Tonight. "Fashion is one of my favorite things, so, you know, we're defying what it even means to be pregnant and maternal. It can get uncomfortable at times and so you can dress the part and pretend."

Rihanna and A$AP, who have been romantically linked since December 2020, announced that they are expecting their first child together late last month.

RELACIÓN FAMILIAR

Luego de formalizar, Mauricio decidió presentar a Paulina con sus hijas, Lorenza (17) y Kailani (3). "Para mí es muy especial que en una relación formal, tu pareja te presente a su familia. Yo sé que, para Mau, sus hijas son lo más importante y la verdad es que sentí muy lindo que me permitiera ser parte y acercarme. Desde un principio las dos fueron muy gentiles conmigo, cada una a su manera y según su personalidad. Lorenza es una adolescente con quien puedo platicar y encontrar temas en común, y con Kai, fue padrísimo conocerla, siempre ha sido muy cariñosa", nos comenta Paulina. Por su parte, el actor nos confiesa que con su hija mayor, Lorenza, ya hablaba de Pau, así como de su deseo de comenzar una nueva relación. "Para mí, en el momento en que sentí que era importante y especial, fue que decidí formalizar. Con Lorenza lo platiqué desde que empecé a salir con Paulina. En general hablo mucho con ella, tenemos una comunicación muy linda, y ella ha sido testigo del proceso hasta que nos convertimos en novios".

Entre risas, Mauricio nos confiesa que fue su hija Lorenza quien, desde el inicio, estuvo al pendiente del nuevo romance de su padre. Incluso se llegó a burlar de él, por su forma de ligar por Instagram, ya que él no sabía cómo funcionaba del todo la red social.

Y adentrados en el terreno de la paternidad, y al recordar la portada de CARAS que en septiembre de 2020 Mauricio protagonizó junto a sus hijas, él nos habla de la relación que hoy sostiene con ambas. "Disfruto mucho ser papá. Estar con ellas, verlas crecer en las diferentes etapas y sepan que nosotras mism@s. Es liberador aceptar tus necesidades y todo lo que eres, tal cual eres: reconocer que si estás sola (aunque el mundo de las redes sociales se esfuerce en hacernos creer que estamos más que nunca interconectadas). Estás tú con tu cuerpo y mente. ¡Y eso está bien! Muy bien.

Tu compromiso +importante

Séllalo con un símbolo de amor por ti mism@.

Por ANDREA SIERRA

La idea preconcebida de esperar a que alguien llegue con un anillo y te prometa un futuro feliz (y no me malinterpretes, que esto suceda a su manera y a su tiempo también me emociona) nos limita; tanto como pensar que primero "necesitamos" amarnos a nosotras mismas porque una vez que lo consigamos, el Universo alineará las cosas y encontraremos a alguien que te acompañe a recorrer la vida. Ambas ideas solo nos llevan a la misma intención inconsciente: "desear a otro porque nos sentimos incompletas".

Y no amiga, no vamos a mentir, algunos de esos anillos de tu feed de IG son realmente deslumbrantes. Pero espera, no estoy aquí para juzgarte. Tod@s hemos enfrentado este sentimiento, solo que es hora de convertirlo en una invitación a fortalecer nuestra relación con pero ve y cómpralo para ti. Hoy no tienes que aguardar al "adecuado" para que te obsesione esa joya; esas flores o vacaciones; date ese amor que anhelas, realíza el compromiso contigo misma de cuidarte, cubrir tus necesidades, proveerte de cariño, estabilidad, seguridad y paz; que ese anillo sea un recordatorio de self love hasta el final de tus días, encuentres o no un compañero de vida.

Estela Durán, psicóloga con gran trayectoria en el área de la salud emocional, unió su experiencia con la de Daniel Espinosa, joyero mexicano de enorme reconocimiento, y presentaron una idea que revoluciona el anillo de compromiso, la colección Constellations de Stelight. "Es un homenaje a esta mujer multifacética: cada una de mis piezas la asocio a una personalidad, hasta llegar a la mujer sin límites. Queremos romper el esquema de que el anillo de compromiso es solamente para el matrimonio", dice Estela para Cosmopolitan y añade que ahora es un recordatorio, para las mujeres, del brillo y muy diferente de lo

tradicional, que son para una pareja prometida amor mutuo; aquí, realmente cada pieza significa el compromiso que tú tienes contigo misma, antes de ofrecerle a alguien más. Por eso también le dimos colores, quisimos diferenciarnos, que fueran personales, es decir, algo que tú valores y un recordatorio de que primero tienes que cuidarte, atenderte, protegerte y procurarte. La joyería es inherente al ser humano y hoy significa amor", enfatiza Daniel.

Así que amiga Cosmo, cuando mires tu anillo recuerda que no tienes que esperar para conseguir uno, ni a que otra persona llene tus vacíos o corrientes emocionales, ese es siempre un trabajo interno tuyo.

Una de las ventajas: nada de preocuparte por el divorcio, un acuerdo prenupcial o tus sangres, pues solo eres tú y tu anillo (que, oye, puedes llevar en el dedo que prefieras).

IF I WAS YOUR BOY-FRIEND...
PERFECCIÓN ESTILO CHANEL

POR JESSICA GUTIERREZ

Elegancia siempre ha sido un adjetivo para describir la casa de moda francesa que creó Coco Chanel. Y este reloj BOY-FRIEND es un claro ejemplo. Se trata de un diseño clásico que, aunque marca el tiempo, también lo desafía. Es una de esas inversiones que tiene la virtud de pasar de generación en generación y siempre ser un tesoro en cualquier clóset. Es perfecto para usar en días casuales, con unos jeans y una t-shirt, pero también es un excelente complemento para llevar con un traje negro de piel y un cuello de tortuga en ocasiones especiales, como una cena de cumpleaños o una comida. ¡Es un win-win!

¿SABÍAS QUE?

En la página de Chanel (chanel.com.mx) puedes jugar a personalizar tu reloj Boy-Friend de la manera más divertida y dinámica. Play with your boyfriend!

CHOPARD LIFE

Con piezas realizadas en oro ético de 18 quilates –rosa o blanco– la colección Happy Hearts de Chopard es un gesto de apoyo a la fundación Naked Heart creado por Natalia Vodjanova en 2004.

LATIDOS DE GENEROSIDAD

Con una edición especial del brazalete Happy Hearts, Chopard reafirma su compromiso de apoyar causas a favor de la infancia desprotegida.

El mundo de la casa Chopard gira con la energía que genera la responsabilidad de obsesionar amor a los más desprotegidos.

Al hacerse de sólidas credenciales en el competitivo mundo de la relojería, Louis Ulysse Chopard fundó en 1860, con tan solo 24 años de edad, una de las empresas sinónimo de excelencia relojera: Chopard. Su hijo y, posteriormente, su nieto tomarían las riendas del fructífero negocio familiar, hasta que en la década de 1960 el destino los cruzaría con la familia Scheufele, quienes darían un giro refrescante a la firma marcando el inicio de un compromiso de responsabilidad y generosidad en las piezas que se producían bajo el sello de la maison.

En este capítulo, la visión creativa de Caroline Scheufele, copresidenta y directora artística de Chopard, ha sido decisiva y abrazada por el mundo entero. Prueba de ello es la divertida colección Happy Hearts, un universo de joyas con un distintivo corazón sinónimo de la generosidad y el amor que moldea, incluso, los más duros metales preciosos, como el oro, con el que se realizan las piezas de la firma.

Para este año, se lanza una edición especial del brazalete Happy Hearts para conmemorar el apoyo de la marca a la fundación Naked Heart –creada en el año 2004 por la modelo y filántropa Natalia Vodjanova– que provee apoyo a niños desfavorecidos en su natal Rusia y el resto del mundo. Para este encuentro entre dos mujeres de gran generosidad, la pulsera trabajada en oro ético rosa o blanco de 18 quilates, con un diamante móvil, se trufa de un corazón en suave nácar rosa, el recordatorio de un tierno abrazo para quienes más lo necesitan.

Moonwatch Professional

En su versión con caja y brazalete de oro Sedna, el cronógrafo que en 1959 llegó a la Luna está listo para conquistar la alfombra roja más exigente. Mide 42 mm y forma parte de la generación más nueva de Speedmaster, con detalles como el famoso punto sobre el 90 (DON) en el anillo del bisel de aluminio anodizado. Igual de importante es que funciona con el mecanismo automático Co-Axial Master Chronometer 3961.

LUC All-in-One de Chopard

Inspirado por el dios romano Janus y famoso por sus 2 caras, el reloj LUC All-in-One de Chopard combina la exclusividad con la mitología. Tiene dos esferas representando las dos caras de Janus, y en su interior la divinidad se hace presente al tener un calendario perpetuo, horas de salida y puesta de sol, fase lunar orbital astronómica y un tourbillon con un complejo sistema mecánico giratorio que le brinda una reserva de marcha de 7 días. Su esfera de platino luce un guilloché artesanal en gris azulado. Si quieres ser uno de los 10 únicos en tener esta joya en tu muñeca, sólo deberás pagar medio millón de dólares.

Erwerk EMC Pistol

El haber sido fabricado completamente a mano por los artesanos de Urwerk, dio como resultado una joya que exhibe un equilibrio perfecto entre los tradicionales mecanismos suizos y la tecnología moderna. Asombroso, así es como definen el último proyecto de la relojería suiza: el Urwerk EMC Pistol, que presume una correa de cuero de cocodrilo y está equipado con cuatro dials independientes, uno para la precisión, otro para los segundos, un tercero para la visualización de las horas y los minutos; y el cuarto es para indicar la reserva de marcha de 80 horas. Su caja de titanio tiene un diámetro de 43 milímetros y cuenta con una estanqueidad de 3 atmósferas. Aunque es el menos costoso de estos tres relojes, es incluso más exclusivo, pues sólo 5 unidades de esta bella pieza se fabricaron y están por encima de los 100 mil euros. Sin duda, cualquiera de estos tres relojes para uso propio o para un regalo, son un Capricho Exclusivo.

Romántico testigo del tiempo

Chopard presenta su nuevo reloj-joya: L'Heure du Diamant.

Gracias a un saber hacer histórico que se mantiene desde 1960, los talleres de Chopard orquestan el encuentro entre la reina de las piedras preciosas (diamante) y la creación relojera contemporánea por medio de la colección L'Heure du Diamant.

Fruto de esta genialidad, la colección se enriquece con un reloj-joya en forma de corazón (un símbolo muy amado en Chopard) provisto de una esfera de nácar rosa con un delicado trabajo de guilloché hecho a mano.

El nuevo reloj-joya está realizado en oro ético rosa de 18 quilates y tiene un bisel completamente engastado con un pavé de diamantes talla brillante sublimados por un engaste corona, así como una correa de cuero rosa. Con su forma de corazón, el reloj L'Heure du Diamant rinde homenaje a dicho símbolo tan asociado a Chopard, la también llamada "Casa del Gran Corazón".

CHRISTIAN DIOR

El museo Rodin levantó una gran galería en sus jardines con obras monumentales de dos artistas indios: Madhvi y Manu Parekh, quienes sirvieron de inspiración a Maria Grazia Chiuri, diseñadora que prefiere vivir en un mundo real versus el Metaverso al que todos están enfocados, dando prioridad a la artesanía y manufactura de lo hecho a mano. Lo demostró en prendas muy nutridas de bordados que parecieran hechos de una sola pieza, lo cual sólo puede lograrse por medio de manos artesanas. Vestidos en colores neutros, muy Dior, presentando transparencias sutiles, y trajes sartoriales en blanco, que bien podrían funcionar como un perfecto look nupcial.

CHOPARD

En la Semana de la Alta Costura, la casa de alta joyería Chopard presentó piedras excepcionales. La principal fue una maravilla de la naturaleza en bruto, de más de 500 millones de años, 6 mil 225 quilates y un peso aproximado de 1.200 kilogramos: la esmeralda Insofu (elefante en bamba), llamada así por su peculiar forma de trompa de paquidermo, una gema originaria de Kagem, Zambia. Fue acompañada de otras bellezas como la sortija de dos diamantes, Tú y yo, en talla pera de 3.01 quilates, un diamante azul y otro más intenso en 4.30 quilates. También la sortija con diamante rosa de 18 quilates, acompañado de dos rubíes en talla corazón que acentuaban el color rosado, casi salmón, de la piedra principal. No menos exquisito fue el diamante camaleón de 31 quilates, nombrado así por sus destellos únicos en tonos verde, dorado y marrón.

El top verde lima y el pantalón ombré plateado y morado estaban confeccionados con un sinfín de lentejuelas cuadradas ensartadas para crear un efecto desgarrado, mientras que el look se completaba con un par de pendientes de amatista y diamantes de Chopard, anillos de diamantes de Messika y un par de fieles sandalias de pitón de Manolo Blahnik.

Una aparición en pedrería fastuosa

Georgina Rodríguez comprueba el dato de la elegancia en pedrería exponencial. DAVE BENNETT/GETTY IMAGES

La edición 74 del Festival de Cannes guardaba otra sorpresa, la cena privada de Chopard. Dicha reunión profesó otro estilismo de gala, pero ahora orquestado por un vestido strapless con notas drapeadas de Alberta Ferretti. Para convivir brillo y vivacidad, Georgina enlazó unos accesorios de pedrería suntuosa de Chopard.

OMEGA
Speedmaster
Moonwatch Professional

En su versión con caja y brazalete de oro Sedna, el cronógrafo que en 1959 llegó a la Luna está listo para conquistar la alfombra roja más exigente. Mide 42 mm y forma parte de la generación más nueva de Speedmaster, con detalles como el famoso punto sobre el 90 (DON) en el anillo del bisel de aluminio anodizado. Igual de importante es que funciona con el mecanismo automático Co-Axial Master Chronometer 3861.

Chopard patrocina el Festival de Cannes y tiene embajadores como Julia Roberts, así que el cine es lo suyo. Este L.U.C. con caja de 40 mm en oro estocrosa, esfera en esmalte blanco Grand Feu y correa en piel de aligátor es su primer reloj de horas saltantes. Lo podemos imaginar perfectamente acaparando reflectores. Chopard lo creó para celebrar el 25º aniversario de su manufactura. Su mecanismo es de cuerda manual.

Masaru Kitaguchi

Maison Kitsuné
Gastown is now home to Canada's very first Café Kitsuné coffee shop and Maison Kitsuné boutique. The Parisian-style Tokyo brand occupies side-by-side, dual-entranced spaces, each designed to emanate connectivity, warmth and modernity, with local materials throughout. Beyond its flavorful coffee, the café, with a brushed stainless-steel counter and custom walnut tables, serves a variety of specialty drinks, pastries, small plates, natural wines, sakes and cocktails. Pick up a bag of homemade granola, created in partnership with Butterbrook bakery or a collaborative Okanagan sour cherry and plum preserved by beloved patisserie Cadeaux Bakery before heading over to the retail side to explore the latest collection (and exclusive Vancouver range) alongside apparel and accessories sporting the brand's iconic, adored cat to head.

Mejuri
The jewelry-travel brand that marketed big-brother "for your damn ass" is stepping up its brick-and-mortar game with a storefront on West Fourth. Open since December, Mejuri's first Vancouver shop coaxes calm and cool chicness: think natural light-filled design with white walls, a minimalist aesthetic, and a carefully curated selection of jewelry. From necklaces, pendants, necklaces, rings, bracelets and jewelry boxes, the brand is famous for. If you're used to snagging your Mejuri finds online, and that suits you just fine, its certainly worth noting the store has 100+ items on display in person, and the staff can offer the best advice. From how to layer your chain necklaces like a pro stylist to explaining the differences between gold vermeil and 14-karat recycled gold, they know it all. Give yourself ample time to browse the brand and find your perfect staple at the ring bar, or get your ears pierced. The store is open 11-6pm, 7 days a week, and the staff is happy to chat with you with some deals. Each piercing appointment comes with complimentary check-ups and post-pondering once healing is complete. Overall, this is a gem in shopping experiences for jewelry lovers. www.mejuri.com

Kito Bando

Kits Eyecore
Vancouver-based eyewear brand Kits has opened its first boutique steps away from its namesake, Kitsilano Beach. Not just a retail space to house its locally manufactured wares, this is a community hub and café (it was previously a popular Starbucks, after all), serving up drinks and snacks by Level V Bakery Whisk Matcha Plates by Patsy, To Live For, Agro Roasters, Tea Leaves, Pure+ Kombucha, The Juice Truck and more, and boasting gargantuan doors that, once summer hits, will be opened wide to allow in the ocean breeze. Shop prescription glasses, sunglasses and contacts for men, women and kiddies, and consult with the in-house optometrist if you need an eye exam.

A photograph of the interior of a Chopard jewelry store. The space is elegantly designed with warm-toned wood paneling on the walls and ceiling. In the foreground, a large, circular, copper-colored display case with the 'Chopard' logo is prominently featured. Behind it, several glass display cases are filled with various pieces of jewelry, including watches and diamonds. The floor is made of light-colored wood, and the ceiling is adorned with ornate, multi-tiered chandeliers. A large window on the left side of the image provides a view of the street outside.

A bit of brick-and-mortar news from leading luxury watch retailer Global Watch Company to double your shopping pleasure in 2022: two new boutiques, located side-by-side (and connected on the inside) on Alberni Street are now open, providing unparalleled retail experiences to customers. First up: Swiss watch and jewelry maker Chopard has shifted its Georgia Street boutique to a larger location, featuring light-wood floors and wall panelling alongside fabrics and furnishings that artfully reflect the feel of a luxe family home (there's even a "gentlemen's area" rife with rich leathers and a library). Peruse sparkling time- and statement pieces—including offerings from the unique Haute Joaillerie and Precious Lace collections, and the iconic L'Heure du Diamant, Happy Diamonds and Ice Cube ranges—while simultaneously indulging in the shop's upscale atmosphere. Second, Tudor has opened its first standalone boutique in Western Canada. Tastefully done in the brand's iconic colours of red, black and grey, the space offers an exceptional range of men's and women's timepieces, including classic, sport, diving and heritage-inspired watches and the newly released Royal line—sport-chic watches with an integrated bracelet, signature notched bezel and automatic movement that are both versatile and affordable. Two true gems. 1108 Alberni St., 604-684-6515. Chopard.com / 1106 Alberni St., 604-288-8091. Tudorwatch.com LOUISA CHAN

Stockholm Fashion Week kicks off on Feb. 7, highlighting Swedish fashion through a new model. The three-day event aims to explore the impact of digital transformation in the continuing pandemic, looking to ways of improving processes and patterns in the fashion space. To showcase homegrown talent, organizers at the Swedish Fashion Association have opted to present a reduced selection of brands to a smaller number of in-person guests, with content also available to a virtual audience. For more information, visit stockholmfashionweek.se.

Canada Goose has launched two new collections under its Humanature initiative, a platform that focuses on sustainability and values. The Humanature capsule collection includes the brand's Standard Expedition parka along with four new coats and puffers for men and women. These styles are all made with 100-per-cent responsibly sourced down (certified to the Responsible Down Standard). And for the 2022 Project Atigi collection, Canada Goose partnered with Inuk fashion designer Victoria Kakukinniq on three limited-edition parkas. Project Atigi is a social entrepreneurship program that celebrates Inuit women in Canada's North, with proceeds supporting self-directed Inuit education, employment and cultural preservation programs through Inuit Tapiriit Kanatami. For more information, visit canadagoose.com.

Hunter has created a limited-edition capsule collection of boot designs inspired by the television series Killing Eve. Available beginning Feb. 7 through Ssense and hunterboots.com, the collection includes the Hunting, a mid-calf style in black or olive, and the Chasing, a knee-high boot in black, olive or camel. Both are made of waterproof Stetson leather and are the first non-rubber boot styles from the brand. And in a partnership with SickKids Hospital, Nobis has created two limited-edition bears dressed in Nobis bomber jackets. The bears are available through nobis.com, with the full pretax purchase price being donated to the SickKids Foundation.

HOLA! MASTER CLASS

JEWELLERY 101 YELLOW DIAMONDS BY CLARA YOUNG

What's all this fuss about yellow diamonds? Sure, they're rare rocks, but they're not as rare as red diamonds. And their coveted canary colour usually indicates the presence of nitrogen, a very common element. So why are they grabbing headlines, popping up in so many hip-hop lyrics and on necks and pinkies at celebrity gala fests?

THE BEY EFFECT

For those living under a precious or non-precious rock, the "Bey effect" is the celebrity version of the butterfly effect, in which a small change can result in a large difference down the line. For example, a butterfly flaps its wings in Valencia; a few weeks later, a tornado rips through Vancouver. In this case, the wings belonged to the biggest butterfly of our day—Beyoncé, who in a recent flap (a.k.a. the About Love ad campaign for Tiffany & Co.) accessorized an epic black cut-out dress with a little-known Jean-Michel Basquiat painting, her husband, Jay-Z, and one of the most prized yellow diamonds ever unearthed.

BEFORE WE TACKLE THIS, WHAT EXACTLY IS A CANARY-YELLOW DIAMOND?

Diamond colour is graded on a chart from D to Z. D to F diamonds are colourless. Next is near colourless (G to J), faint (K to M), very light (N to R) and light (S to Z). While diamonds lower down the scale often cost less than colourless diamonds of similar quality, fancy diamonds (those with more saturated colours than Z-rated diamonds) can have a higher value than their clear counterparts. The brightest ones are called mid-yellow, canary-yellow or, sometimes, Zimé or Zimé diamonds. Zimé is a town in Sierra Leone near the border of Liberia, an area that saw one of Africa's bloodiest civil wars in the 1990s. Which brings us back to the matter at hand.

BEHOLD THE TIFFANY DIAMOND

Found in 1877 in the Kimberley Mine in colonial South Africa—the country where yellow diamonds were first "discovered"—the Tiffany Diamond weighs in at a whopping 128.54 carats. It's heavy in other ways, too. Tiffany reportedly purchased it for US$18,000—which would be about US$500,000 today. But normal inflation rates don't apply to big-ticket bling: In 2018, it was estimated to be worth approximately US$30 million. It has only been worn by four women in public: socialite Mary Whitehouse in 1937, actor Audrey Hepburn in promotional photos for Breakfast at Tiffany's in 1961, Lady Gaga at the Oscars in 2019 and now Queen Bey. Its first three appearances didn't cause any tornadoes. But on Beyoncé—the first Black woman to wear it—it raised a media storm. Very harsh attention in the Twitterphere was paid to the less shimmering aspects of its historical meanings and values—which, to say the least, aren't "about love."

WHAT IS A BLOOD DIAMOND?

According to the UN, blood diamonds are "conflict diamonds" that "originate from areas controlled by forces or factions opposed to legitimate and internationally recognized governments, and are used to fund military action in opposition to those governments." The conflict areas most often mentioned today are Ivory Coast, Democratic Republic of the Congo, Liberia, Angola and Sierra Leone. In the 1990s, an estimated 21 per cent of all diamond sales were considered illegal and unethical. Thanks to international pressure (especially from the UN Security Council and General Assembly and the United States and Canada) that number is much lower today, with 98.3 per cent of rough diamonds coming through a certification system known as the Kimberly Process. The internationally supported system has increased supply chain transparency in the industry, dramatically reducing traffic in conflict diamonds. While it's not perfect, the system is followed diligently by many leading jewelers.

SO, A YELLOW DIAMOND ENGAGEMENT RING IS...?

A great idea. The top tier of the jewellery market understands that people want jewellery that makes them feel good wearing it. That means they want three things: a piece that is dazzling but also sustainable and ethically sourced. So, here's an idea: Why not just buy Canadian? The Diavik Diamond Mine in the Northwest Territories, Canada's second diamond mine, prides itself on its partnerships with the First Nations peoples in the region and minimizes its environmental impact. It has produced on average five yellow diamonds a year since it opened in 2003—including some whoopees, like the Dancing Bunt, a 204.36-carat fancy yellow cushion-modified brilliant-cut stone hewn from the largest gem-quality rough diamond ever found in North America. More than 75 carats heavier than the Tiffany Diamond, it sold at Christie's in June 2021 for approximately $6,530,000. It hasn't been announced who bought it yet, but when it does finally appear on the neck of some butterfly diva diva, it's bound to cause some serious flap.

SO, THE TIFFANY DIAMOND IS NOT A BLOOD DIAMOND?

Judging by the response to the About Love ad campaign, many believe that a wider definition of what a conflict diamond is should be adopted—maybe something like "all stones, including those mined a century and a half ago, that were extracted by exploited people." But what, then, should be done with the stone? Give it back to the people of South Africa, perhaps, or put it in a museum and provide a description of its racist colonial history so that people can better understand the pain and misery it caused on its first day out of the ground after the millions of days it spent under it. Or put it around the neck of an African-American who, with every flap of her wings, redefines power, sisterhood and womanhood in general and who, like her male musical counterparts, including Jay-Z, unabashedly celebrates this influence and power. The couple, along with Tiffany & Co., have started the About Love Scholarship program—a more than $2.5-million fund awarded to the students of five Historically Black Colleges and Universities in the United States. The company's website also states its commitment to a "zero-tolerance policy toward conflict diamonds" and that it will "source [its] diamonds only from known sources and countries that are participants in the Kimberly Process."

CHOPARD Flower Power 汲取自然之氣，展露奢華之貴

精緻而一朵朵綻放的花朵結成的時鐘，出自蕭邦 (Chopard) 品牌 2021 年的紅結系列。該系列的主題為天堂。天堂主題的設計主旨是展現自然的本真。領域與生命。蕭邦聯合總裁兼創意總監卡羅琳·舍費爾 (Caroline Scheufele) 的設計為該系列引入了巴洛克式的奇幻風格。設計師選用材料於繁華繁榮的自然。蕭邦建立於一個高貴的伊甸園——有寶石般的糖果等精緻探險，有富有生機的地帶、歌聲中的鳥類和奔馳的動物。

Flower Power 時鐘的整體造型像一個色彩明艷的花園。極盡奢華。它由白金鑲嵌，以精美的梨形切割、明亮式切割鑽石，以及粉色藍寶石鑲嵌。

時鐘的底層是一片潔淨的乳白色珍珠母貝，上精心鑲嵌了 12 顆粉色藍寶石。Flower Power 時鐘共使用了約 76 克拉的寶石，組成了一朵綻放的本蘭花。這朵永生花在同日不同時開放光澤的同時也為奢華時鐘一些精緻時移年變的永恆而鑲嵌。除了那些本身鑲嵌的寶石價值不菲之外，這枚時鐘同樣展現出了高水準的製作工藝。高級的珠寶專業知識和審美素養。時鐘經過 30 名工匠之手才誕生。蕭邦品牌所秉承的可持續奢華的理念也在這枚時鐘中體現出來。鑲嵌的所有寶石都嚴格遵守公平採購道德標準。這枚時鐘在 2021 年日内瓦高級鐘錶大賞中獲頒最佳珠寶時鐘獎。

Rihanna's Pregnancy Style Signifies a New Era of Maternity Fashion

RiRi is rewriting the rules.

By Natalie Michie Date February 15, 2022

When it comes to maternity style, Rihanna is not here to play by any prescribed set of rules. And are we surprised? After all, this is the woman who announced her pregnancy on January 31 with a street style photoshoot in which she rocked vintage Chanel and a bejewelled baby bump. The viral pictures of Rihanna and her partner ASAP Rocky were a foreshadowing of the jaw-dropping pregnancy style to come.

A slinky set

Businesswoman that she is, Rihanna attended a Fenty Beauty x Fenty Skin event on February 12. Wearing a custom top and pant set by The Attico, the ensemble's green drape square sequins sit perfectly over her budding baby bump. As for accessories, we're talking diamonds (and lots of them) — including Chopard diamond drop earrings and a gold and diamond body chain by Jacquie Aiche. ASAP Rocky was also there, admiring her pregnant glow just like the rest of us.

Rihanna Says Being Pregnant Has Been An 'Exciting Journey So Far' (Exclusive)

Pregnant Rihanna is staying the red carpet. The 33-year-old singer attended her first public event on Friday night since revealing she and longtime boyfriend ASAP Rocky are expecting their first child together. While walking the carpet, she spoke to ET about her stunning maternity fashion, what's she enjoying most about this stage in her life and the possibility of new music.

Outside Goya Studios in Los Angeles where she was celebrating her Fenty Beauty and Fenty Skin, Rihanna was seen showing off her baby bump in a green, sequined The Attica Spring 2022 RTW halter top with matching pink pants and jewelry from Chopard and Messika. When asked about her stylish looks by ET's Rachel Smith, the singer said, "It's a long nine to 10 months. You have to enjoy it."

"I'm trying to enjoy it as much as I could. And fashion is one of my favorite things, so, you know, we're defying what it even means to be pregnant and maternal," she continued, adding with a laugh, "It can get uncomfortable at times and so you can dress the part and pretend."

Bringing Rihanna's looks together is her current beauty routine, which includes "staying moisturized, from head to toe." And never leaving the house without her one of her must-haves from the Fenty Skin line, which is the "Gloss Bomb for sure," she said.

Of course, the singer is enjoying every moment of being pregnant. "It's all an exciting journey so far. I'm just taking it as it comes every week. There's always something new and I'm just taking it and I'm enjoying it," Rihanna said, while joking that she's loving "donuts, so far."

While the singer is focused on "one thing at a time," she hasn't put music on the back burner. "Yes, you're still going to get music from me," she shared. But just don't expect any lullabies now that she's a mom-to-be. "My fans would kill me if they waited this long for a lullaby."

Also at the event was ASAP Rocky, who revealed to ET that he's loving "everything about" the journey so far. "I'm just excited for what I don't know yet. Everything is new to me," the rapper said. "So, I'm excited."
